PCAHS MEETING TIME

The Pike County Archives and History Society meets the first Thursday night of each month from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in the Murfreesboro Municipal Building. The 6:30 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. time period is set aside for members and guests to discuss and exchange ideas on history, genealogy and effective ways to do research. Business meeting is held from 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. Annual membership dues are $10.00. Lifetime membership dues are $100.00. The Pike County Archives and History Society was founded in 1986 and is a non-profit organization. Its holdings, until the new archives open, are located on the third floor of the Pike County Courthouse in Murfreesboro, Arkansas and the Heritage Room at the Library in Murfreesboro. Library hours: Closed Monday; Tuesday-Wednesday, 10:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.; Thursday, 1:30 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.; Friday, 10:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. The PCAHS courthouse hours Monday-Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. If Court is not in session call first: Harrison Gilmer (870) 285-3187 or Linda Wilson (870) 379-2471. Helpful telephone numbers: Pike County Clerk’s Office (870) 285-2231; County Judge Courthouse (870) 285-2414; Mayor’s Office for Library (870) 285-3722.

The Gems, Pike County, Arkansas is a publication of the Pike County Archives and History Society.
Western Arkansas is blessed with a wealth of small to medium size white-water streams that make it a Mecca for the fisherman and the sports enthusiast. Among these rivers is the Little Missouri. Although now tamed and tranquil behind Narrows Dam on Lake Greeson, the once free flowing Little Missouri was home to some of our state’s first attempts at industrialization. It is born deep within the scenic, “pine-forested ridges and valleys” of some of Arkansas’ most rugged uplands, from springs at the foot of the Missouri Mountains in eastern Polk County. Fed by numerous "mountain streamlets and creeks", the infant river cascades eastward into Montgomery County through a series of white-water gorges including the "extraordinary Little Missouri Falls". It then forces its way through the last ridges of the Cossatot Range and enters Pike County west of Langley. The remainder of its course is confined within this county as it continues south and east toward it mouth with the Ouachita River above Tate’s Bluff. Along the way, it passes through regions rich in cinnabar, Novaculite, gypsum, and asphalt. Near the mouth of Prairie Creek, just south of Murfreesoboro, it flows beside North America’s only large-scale diamond field. Further downstream it becomes "a lazy, meandering low land river, subject to frequent overflows", with a flood plain that spreads out across parts of Hempstead, Nevada, and Clark counties.

EARLY EXPLORERS

French travelers knew the river as the "Petite Missouri". According to George William Featherstonhaugh, who crossed it in 1835, the river received its name "from its waters being of a dusky red muddy color, like those of the great Missouri". Jean Filhiol, who explored the Ouachita River in 1786, observed that the Little Missouri was known for its sudden, "frequent rises", that alternated with periods of low water. Settlers along its banks, he noted, have to "hurry to take advantage of the rising of the waters (that) is very rapid but it loses as quickly what came into it from the mountain drains." The famous explorer, William Dunbar, passed by its mouth in 1804 and commented that it was known as the "lesser and Little" Missouri. "It is a considerable branch" he wrote, "perhaps (a) fourth (in size) of the Washita".

EARLY SETTLERS

One of the early land routes from Little Rock to Texas, known as the Southwest Trail, forded the Little Missouri south of Delight. Hundreds of immigrants seeking greener pastures in the West made the crossing each week. However, once across, the traveler took his life into his own hands as he navigated nearly three miles of Little Missouri bottoms, some of the most impassable overflow lands along the route. The Englishman, Featherstonhaugh, complained that after "we crossed in the ferry boat, the waters being high, (we) entered upon a close low bottom, densely covered with cane, laurel, holly and swamp timber of every kind. (The road) was intersected by numerous bayous, over which (were built) nine bridges, five of which were impassable owing to the greater part of the thick planks, which formed their floors, not having been secured by pegs or tree-nails so that they had floated away the very first inundation".

By 1814, the rich lands on the north bank of the river had attracted a scattering of American settlers. "Wolf Creek Settlement", located near Delight, grew into a community noted for the "exertions & persevering industry” of its inhabitants. About the same time, a few settlers began to filter into an area to the west of Wolf Creek called "Three Forks". This is fertile bottomland located south of the junction of the Clear and Muddy forks of the Little Missouri. A few miles downstream, the river is joined by Prairie Creek, thus the name "Three Forks". By 1833, when Pike County was established, settlers along the river numbered some 500. The county commissioners located the county seat in the Three Forks area at Murfreesboro. Also a post office was secured named Zebulon. The mountainous area north of Murfreesboro did not attract settlers until later. White Township, covering much of what is now Lake Greeson, was created in 1847. Areas along the upper reaches of the river were but sparsely settled and became a part of the Ouachita National Forest in 1907.
EARLY MILLING INDUSTRY

The gristmill, the flourmill, the sawmill, and later the cotton mill, were important institutions on the Arkansas frontier. Sparse settlement and undependable transportation created a hardship for the farmer who needed to convert his raw produce into useful goods in order to feed, clothe, and house his family. Although Arkansas frontiersmen were ingenious in meeting these needs, the construction of a mill within conformable travel distance was a sure sign of the advance of civilization.

Because of the Little Missouri's "heavy fall", the difference in elevation between its head and Narrows Dam is some 1,000 feet, this river was long recognized as capable of supplying "almost unlimited water power". "We have the greatest water power in Arkansas" stated one local resident in 1859. "I have traveled up and down the river. It surely is possessed of the greatest sites for mills and machinery of all kinds that I ever saw".

"Hugh's Mill", perhaps a sawmill, seems to be the area's first water mill. This location, wrote Henry Merrill in 1863, (who was informed in 1856) had been used as a mill site for some "forty years". Its founder evidently was John Hughes, who moved to Three Forks about 1819. A survey plat of the area made in 1839 shows "Hughes Field" about a mile below the old Royston site on the east side of the river. "Hugh's mill" was probably near this field. Hughes was a local civic leader and politician. He became the county's first sheriff, served in the Territorial Legislature, and was later county treasurer. Although he does not show up on early county tax records as a miller, he was a very wealthy man, with some $3,500 of personal wealth in 1837.

By their very nature, early mills on the Little Missouri appear to have been temporary affairs. Quickly built, they were quickly swept away by the rapid rises of this capricious river. Other early Pike County millers were Jesse Bittick, William M. Ward, Thomas Cox, and Robert McDonald.

WHITE'S MILL

In 1840, Isaac White makes his first appears on Pike County tax rolls as a "miller". He would remain in this trade for the next seventeen years. His sawmill is one of the few early area mills for which an exact location is known. It appears as a landmark on an 1839 survey plat. Evidently profiting from other's experiences, White built his mill not on the river itself, but on the waters of Prairie Creek just above its mouth with the Little Missouri. This set White's site above the sudden overflows for which the river was so notorious. Ironically, White seems to have viewed his mill as only a minor source of wealth. Unbeknownst to him, it set only a few yards from what is now the Carter of Diamonds State Park.

White was born in 1794 and came to Arkansas about 1829. Over the years, he became quite wealthy. In 1845, he wrote to his brother, Peter, who lived in Kentucky, that he owned between "7 or 8 thousand dollars" worth of property. He also mentioned that he was training his young son, William Jordan White, to be a miller. Like John Hughes, White also became a local office holder. In 1829 and 1831 he served as a Justice of the Peace. Later he was elected Pike County sheriff, serving two terms beginning in 1836. Still later he served as Pike County county and probate judge. This was the "Judge White" who directed Henry Merrill, the founder of the Royston factory, to the old Hughes Mill site in 1856. Between 1849 and 1850 the mill operated by White and his son produced 10,000 board feet of lumber and realized a profit of some $500. White continued to be active in local political affairs until his death during the Civil War. His son later become one the "most prominent characters connected with the growth of Pike County".

STAR OF THE WEST

We now turn our attention to the Star of the West mill site, some thirty miles northwest of Murfreesboro. This "mill head", now submerged under the northern edge Lake Greeson, was located between Daisy and New Hope. Here, a ledge of rock, some four feet high, cuts across the channel of the Clerk Fork of the Little Missouri and forms a "most perfect rock dam". A visitor in 1879 described it as "certainly wonderful, complete, and as natural a dam as can possibly be found". It is reminiscent of the rock formation at Natural Dam in Crawford County. The first settler in the area was William Stone, a Tennessee native, who came to Arkansas about 1839. He was the first to acquire lands at Star of the West in 1852. Shortly afterwards he sold the property to William M. Hays, a recent South Carolina immigrant. Hays then moved to Centre Point in what was then Sevier County, and became the partner of a wealthy Methodist clergyman and "builder and contractor", Moses Hill, who himself had just arrived from Laurens District, South Carolina. They formed the firm of "Hays and Hill" and began the construction of a gristmill near where the Murfreesboro to Centerville Road crossed the Clear Fork.

Although the exact nature of the relationship is unclear, evidence suggests that Hays and Hill employed Willis Jones, a newcomer from Mississippi, to manage their new mill. A visitor to the area in 1859 commented that "Willis Jones, esq. has a wheat manufacturing mill that is hardly surpassed by any in the west". Within a short while, a small trading center grew up beside the site. Jones established a post office for the new community in 1860 and named it Star of the West, perhaps for the famous steamship. As was the case with many of his predecessors, Jones' association with the milling industry catapulted him in politics. He was elected to the Arkansas General Assembly in 1860. However, at the beginning of the Civil War, Jones, whose sentiments lay with the Union cause, was forced to flee the area. In December of 1863, he was in occupied Benton assisting in setting up Arkansas' Unionist government. He later served as a Major in the Union Army.

In 1862, Hays returned to Star of the West. He survived the War and became the community postmaster in 1870. The U.S. Census of that year shows that the mill, operated by Hays and his brother, Jonathan J. Hays, now boasted an eight-foot dam and two fifteen inch water wheels. It had processed sixty bushels of corn and forty bushels of wheat that year. Shortly afterwards Hays left Star of the West and moved to the thriving village of Amity in Clark County.

About 1878, George T. Epperson, a veteran of the Union Army, who replaced Hays as postmaster in 1872, became associated with the Star of the West mill. In 1880, his mill boasted both turbine and "reduction" water wheels and employed some nine workers. By 1884 the operation had been expanded to include a "water powered saw mill, grist, and woolen mills". Soon however, Star of the West declined. By 1892, only the gristmill was in operation. The community lost its post office in 1901.

HENRY MERRILL

By far the Little Missouri's most famous mill was the one founded by the tireless and resourceful Henry Merrill at Royston in 1856. In fact, it was Arkansas' most successful antebellum experiment in industrialization and community planning. Merrill, whose life has been chronicled in James L. Skinner III's excellent "Autobiography of Henry Merrill Industrial Missionary to the South," was Northern born and bred. Yet like several of his contemporaries, he became so identified with the South that he held the rank of "Maj. and engineer" in the Confederate Army. He came to Georgia in 1839 seeking his fortune. Over the next fifteen years, he managed that state's three largest textile factories.

However, in 1855, at the age of sixty, Merrill, bowing to increasing competition from new cotton factories and smarting from the failure of one of his enterprises, began looking west of the Mississippi for a new field of labor. Meticulous research drew him to the southern slopes of the Ouachita Mountains in southwest Arkansas, where he hoped to find untapped and reliable sources of waterpower. In January of 1856 he set out from Georgia for a tour of possible sites. A Kind Providence guided him to Washington, Arkansas and a meeting with General Grandison Royston, a wealthy, local lawyer and politician.

By chance, while speaking with Royston about his quest, Merrill was introduced to former Pike County Judge, Isaac White. He at once recommended the old "Hugh's Mill" site three miles north of Murfreesboro. Although this 'mill seat' was one of long standing, the land upon which it set was still in the public domain. After a careful inspection of the site and its "brush dam and small ramshackle mill", Merrill "purchased the (preemptive) rights of the occupant (Mr. Dorsey sic)" at a low rate and immediately returned to the land office at Washington and purchased the land. It was more "than enough for the site of a manufacturing village", Merrill wrote, "say six or seven hundred acres in all".
"Mr. Dorsey" was no doubt William G. Dossey, who in partnership with a Mr. "Kelley", had operated a small gristmill at the site since about 1850. Dossey, who later moved to Centre Point, was the father in law of James H. Howard, the Reconstruction Era legislator, for whom Howard County was named. By 1856, Dossey had subleased the work at the mill to an old miller with a "young wife" named "Capt. (James) Snell". Later when Merrill arrived to claim his property, Snell refused to vacate either the mill or the miller's house, an old log cabin, and Merrill and his family were forced to move in with him.

After a quick trip to the North to purchase equipment, Merrill was back in Pike County by May of 1856 and hard at work on his new mill. At the beginning of this venture, he formed a partnership with several former Georgia associates and had combined their investment with his wife's considerable personal fortune. However, he still needed additional capital to make his dream a reality. He found a perfect partner in wealthy Camden merchant, John Matlock.

Early in 1857 the Arkansas General Assembly granted a charter to the Arkansas Manufacturing Company for the purpose of producing "cotton and woolen goods, yarns, or material of which wool or cotton form constitute parts, also, for grinding wheat and corn and other grains, sawing lumber, and also, to carry on the business of merchandizing in the most advantageous manner". The principle stockholders were John Matlock and Elizabeth P. Merrill, Henry Merrill's wife. Each subscribed $20,000 to the new enterprise. Merrill was designated as sole agent for the company.

Merrill who was a largely self-taught engineer was the first to bring "modern" dam construction methods to the Little Missouri. Up until this time, all local dams were "brush dams", according to Merrill. Such dams were only a few feet high and notoriously leaky. They were also impermanent in nature and were usually carried off by the first high water. They received their name because they were built of sticks and mud like a "beaver's work".

Merrill resolved to build a modern "timber-framed" dam in the form of a plate of heavy timber supported by cross girders and anchored to "14 x 14" inch locally cut white oak timbers "scarfed and pinned across the whole river & into the banks". In this kind of construction, unlike the "brush" dam, the structure was actually held in place by the pressure of the water itself upon the "plate". He built so well that the remains of the foundation of his dam can still be seen in the bed of the Little Missouri.

With the new dam providing power for his cotton and woolen carding and spinning machines, Merrill built another "low dam" below this structure to provide power for his flourmill. After completing his mills, he erected a general store from which he paid his workers in merchandize and barter. Over the next several years, he added housing for his workers and even instituted regular Sunday School and church services.

A post office was established at Merrill's "factory" in May of 1857 with Charles A. Magill, Merrill's brother in law, as postmaster. It was named Royston, in honor of General Royston, who was by now in the Arkansas State Senate. Although the name continued to be officially Royston until the post office closed in 1873, the site was always called "The Factory" or just Factory. By 1860 Merrill's village was composed of a general store, a saw mill, a grist and flour mill, a carding factory, a cotton thread spinning factory, a warehouse, as well as stables, workers houses, gardens, wells, and black smith and wood working shops. The U.S. Census for that year gives the names of the ten men and twenty women who worked in the mills. Through their efforts, the enterprise processed some 150 bales of cotton and 20 bales of wool, as well as 9,000 bushels of corn and 1,000 bushels of wheat.

The outbreak of War, forced Merrill to run his mills night and day in an attempt to meet the ever-increasing demand for cotton and woolen thread. He soon found that the seasonable flow of the Little Missouri was insufficient to meet his needs. The solution was steam power. When trips to Memphis and New Orleans failed to produce an engine, in desperation, he returned to Camden and had local craftsmen fabricate one. However, relentless pressure from Confederate officials, as well as the imminent prospect of armed invasion, proved too much for the indomitable Henry Merrill. Early in 1863, he sold all his interests in the Royston factory to his partner, John Matlock.
Matlock was an enigmatic man, who first appeared in the new, bustling river port town of Camden about 1846. Through astute business dealings and a fiercely competitive spirit, he quickly became one of the most influential and wealthy men in the community. In his public dealings, he was always the strict businessman. However, in his personal dealings he was strangely taciturn and shy. One contemporary recalled that he was "without any (personal) magnetism to attract people to him". One doubted that he ever smiled. "I am sure", he noted, "that a hearty laugh could have caused him instant death".

Merrill visited Camden early in 1856; however, he failed to meet Matlock. "He was not a talker", Merrill wrote, and "never much on the street. He had money but was not disposed to talk about it". After Merrill had decided upon the Royston site, he received an unsolicited correspondence from Matlock offering to invest in the venture. Merrill was impressed by his "straight out Western ways" and agreed to meet him. They found themselves, as Merrill said, "mutually pleased" with each other and the deal was struck.

In January of 1863, Merrill sold his manufacturing village to Matlock, lock, stock, and mill. In September of that year, Little Rock fell to advancing Union forces. Soon afterwards, Matlock's mills passed into the "possession of" the Confederate Trans-Mississippi Department. Soldiers hurriedly stripped the mill of all of its easily moveable parts and machinery, throwing them, "promiscuously into wagons and transported them over rivers, hills, and dales to Mount Prairie, Anderson County, Texas". Here Confederate craftsmen patiently rebuilt and reassembled the machinery and by September of 1864 had it back into production.

After the War, Matlock's mill "passed (back) into the hands of its owner and was again transported to its old home and set to work". By 1870, Matlock's operation was in full swing. That year he employed twenty-five workers. Most were nimble fingered Black women and children. One of his employees was only four years old. They processed some 17,000 pounds of wool rolls and produced over 13,000 pounds of cotton thread, as well as lumber and corn meal. In 1875, Matlock expanded his operation. He "erected a large new mill and equipped it well with all needful machinery" and Royston took on the "dignity of a village of some 200 people".

Soon however, Matlock experienced the first of a series of financial setbacks. In 1873, following the advice of his brother in law, Robert E. Arrington, he agreed to invest in a Missouri "fruit farm". Part of the payment consisted of Ouachita River bottomland. However, much of the land was found to be subject to overflow. The resulting dispute led to lawsuit after crippling lawsuit. The case was finally appealed to the Arkansas Supreme Court, where in 1886, Matlock lost his suit. Shortly afterwards, depressed and heavily in debt, he drank "an eighth of an ounce of morphine" and left behind this vail of sorrow. His estate, including the Royston village, was soon sold at auction to pay his creditors.

The fate of old mill site was sealed in May of 1888, when a flash flood of historic proportions, soared through Royston and carried away the "factory building and about $2,000 worth of machinery". A year later the Arkadelphia Cotton and Woolen Mills was incorporated in Arkadelphia. The new company purchased the old Matlock factory site and its remaining equipment. The mills were again disassembled and this time transported to Arkadelphia. Here the machinery continued to operate until about 1906.

By 1890 the old Royston site stood deserted except for a "the fine old mansion erected by Mr. Matlock". The remains of the dam, the factory building, and the workers village were all "rapidly falling into ruin and decay". It would later take the U.S. Corps of Engineers and a twelve and a half million-dollar dam before the rampaging power of the Little Missouri could be fully tamed.

During War Times 1861-1865

The military operations in Pike County consisted in supplying the Confederate army with two full companies, raised and dispatched to the front in 1861, and many recruits, both volunteers and conscripts, at later periods in the strife. A large number of men, estimated by some as many as 200 left the county, presumably to join the Federal army; many of them however went North, and engaged in civil pursuits till the fighting was over, when they returned, and many are living here at the present time.

The first company for the Confederate army was recruited in the summer of 1861. At its organization Mr. Frank Black was elected captain, W.B. Gould, first, J.N. McCollum and H.C. Polk, second lieutenants. This company left Murfreesboro in July 1861, and marched to Van Buren, where they were organized into the Fourth Arkansas Regiment Infantry, and dispatched to Southwestern Missouri; from that State fell back to Northwestern Arkansas, and participated in the battle of Pea Ridge. They were then sent east of the Mississippi River, where they were attached to the army of Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, under whom they served until his surrender in North Carolina in 1865.

Capt. Black died at Cross Hollow, Ark., in 1862, and Lieut. Gould was promoted to the vacant office; he resigned soon after, on account of ill health, when Sergt. B.D. Brock was elected to the command, and led the company in many closely contested battles, till the surrender. Lieut. Mc-Collum resigned some time in 1862, and soon after joined the Federal army, with whom he fought until the end of the strife. Less than a dozen veterans of this company are living in Pike County now (1890), among whom are Dr. W.D. Alford, Rev. G.W. Brock, M.K. Brock, Eri Webb and Cyrus McRae.

Later in 1861 another company was recruited, by William J. Kelley. At the organization, Mr. Kelley was elected captain, and Dr. B.R. Dickson, first, W.M. Gilmer, second, and Granderson D. Preston, third lieutenant. This company was organized into the (Sixteenth) Arkansas Infantry. After the Battle of Pea Ridge, in which they were engaged, they proceeded across the Mississippi River. After several engagements, they were with the army at the defense of Port Hudson, and sustained the noted siege of that place; at its fall, they were paroled, and very few ever joined the army again.
Capt. Kelley had resigned, on account of bad health, soon after the troops reached the front; he returned home and lived in Pike County till his death in (1872).

Dr. William D. Alford

He enlisted in Company G, Fourth Arkansas Infantry, August 10, 1861, and participated in the battle of Pea Ridge. Immediately after the battle he was appointed assistant surgeon, and accompanied the sick and wounded troops to Little Rock from Van Buren. He remained in the hospital at Little Rock until the fall of that city in September, 1863, when he was taken prisoner and sent to Camp Morton, at Indianapolis, where he was retained as assistant for the sick. He remained there until the surrender of Gen. Lee, and then returned to Pike County, Ark. Service records indicate his release on oath May 18, 1865.

P.H. Baker

In 1861 he entered the Confederate army, enlisting in Company G, Fortieth Tennessee Regiment, under Gen. Walker. He was captured at New Madrid, and taken to Springfield, Ill., where he remained one year. He was exchanged at Vicksburg, Miss., where he was recapatured at Port Hudson, was paroled to camp, returned home, and then reported to Gen. Kirby Smith. He participated in the battle of Pleasant Hill, La., and then returned home.

John C. Barnes

At the outbreak of the late (Civil) war he enlisted in the Confederate cause, in Speer’s company, 19th Arkansas, Dawson’s regiment; he was captured at Arkansas Post and carried to Chicago, thence to City Point, Virginia and thereafter to Baltimore, where he died in the hospital in (1863) of small pox. Service records indicate his death May 23, 1863.

John J. Bowen

He participated in the late (Civil) war, serving under Capt. Speer, Company A, 19th Arkansas Infantry. Service records indicate his enlistment October 10, 1861 at Antoine, Arkansas and his death April 15, 1862, place not stated.

William R. Brewer

William R. Brewer, enlisted in the Confederate army, Company G, Fourth Arkansas Infantry and returned with the same horse on which he rode away from home. Service records indicate his detail as a nurse in St. John's College Hospital in Little Rock, Arkansas.

George W. Brock

He joined the Confederate army, July 13, 1861, Company G, Fourth Arkansas Infantry, and witnessed the scenes of many hard fought battles. At the close of the late war he came home to Pike County. Service records indicate his discharge May 18, 1862.

James Brock

He served in the Confederate army in the late (Civil) war, as sergeant in Company C, Twelfth Tennessee regiment, and engaged in many battles, among the principal ones being, Murfreesboro, Chickamauga, Pegmont, Kings, Salt Work. While in Scotty County, Va., he was wounded by a bushwacker, a ball passing through his right thigh, received a furlough, came home and did not return again.

Moses Brock

In 1861 he enlisted in the Confederate army, and participated in about the same engagements as his father, James Brock above.

William A. Buckner

In 1861 he entered the Confederate army, under Gen. Price in Company I, Gates’ regiment, and in his first battle was wounded by having two fingers shot off his left hand. He was in Galveston, Tex., when his regiment surrendered.

Henry W. Carter

In 1862, Mr. Carter enlisted in the Confederate army as a private and was soon promoted to first lieutenant of Company A, Fourth Arkansas Regiment. Later he was made captain of his company, and served in that capacity until the close of the war. He was in the battles of Pine Bluff, Pea Ridge, Pilot Knob, Lexington, Kansas City, Poison Springs and Saline River. He was also in numerous skirmishes.

Benjamin T. Clement

Mr. Clement enlisted in the late war in 1861, as first lieutenant, in the Confederate service, Company B, Thirty-eighth Virginia Infantry, and was in the following engagements: Second battle at Manasses, Antietam, Gettysburg, Cold Harbor, Five Forks and numerous skirmishes. He was slightly wounded at the battle of Fort Darling.

Jim P. Copeland

In 1861 he enlisted in the late (Civil) war in the Confederate cause, under Gen. Churchill, in Company I, First Arkansas, McNair's brigade and participated in many severely fought battles, among the principal ones being Oak Hill, Elkhorn, Corinth, Richmond, Peryville, Murfreesboro, Chickamauga, (where he was wounded through the left arm), Dug Gap, and Resaca. At one place he had his right leg broken. He was then paroled by Col. Stevens, and returned home to Pope County.

George T. Epperson

During the late (Civil) war, or in 1863, Mr. Epperson enlisted in the Federal army as captain in Company D. Fourth Arkansas Regiment, and although in no general battles, he was in numerous skirmishes.

Allen A. Gentry

He served in the Confederate army, entering in 1863, under Col. Traer, in Company I, Sixteenth Arkansas Regiment. His regiment surrendered in Texas and Mr. Gentry immediately returned home to Pike County.

James M. Gilleylen

In 1863 he enlisted in the Confederate service, under Gen. Samuel Gaston, and served until the close of the war, when he returned home.

William B. Gould

In July, 1861, he entered a home company, was elected (second) lieutenant of the company, marched to Van Buren, where they were or ganized into the Fourth Regiment, under Capt. Black, and participated in the battle of Pea Ridge. Their captain died and Mr. Gould was elected in his stead, but he resigned this commission in 1862, on account of ill health, and returned home where he remained until his death in 1874. Service records indicate his discharge May 25, 1862 under the Conscription Act.

James W. Hamilton

He enlisted (1861) in the Confederate army, Company A, First Arkansas Regiment, as private, and after drilling for some time at Little Rock, was ordered to Missouri, where his company captured quite a number of Union soldiers. After this they had a lively battle at Oak Hill, and in this our subject received a slight wound. Later Mr. Hamilton was in the battle of Elkhorn and was then transferred to Mississippi, where he took part in the battle of Farmington, then Chickamauga, and there he received another wound, which kept him off the field for sixty days. He subsequently participated in the battle of Richmond, also Perryville, and in 1863 he was in the Georgia campaign, where he was in a fight every day until the fall of Atlanta. After this he was in the battle of Jonesboro, and was then ordered to Vicksburg, Miss., where he engaged in the battle of Baker's Creek. He also took part in the engagements at Murfreesboro and Franklin, Tenn., and the battle of Jamestown.

Jonathan G. Hankins

In 1862 he entered the Confederate army, under Gen. Grocy, in Company I, Forty-third Alabama Regiment, and participated in some of the hard fought battles of that war, among the principal of which were Chickamauga, Bristol, Va., Richmond, Petersburg. At the surrender he was in Virginia, and immediately after that he returned to his home.

Abner N. Henderson

He served in the Confederate army in the late (Civil) war, enlisting July 18, 1862, under Gen. Churchill, and participated in many of the principal battles of that war. He was captured at Arkansas Post, and carried to Chicago, where he remained for four months. He was exchanged at City Point, Va., then went to Tennessee, and joined the Tennessee army, and fell back with the army into Georgia, being detailed as cook, at the time of the Chickamauga battle. Again he was with the army, participated in the battles of Missionary Ridge, Resaca, Ga., and at Atlanta, was again captured at Jonesboro, Ga., and was carried to Nashville, Tenn. After his exchange he went with the command on the raid into Tennessee; one month after he was prisoner at Nashville. He was with his command in the battle of Nashville, and fell back with the army, and crossed the Tennessee River on Christmas day, 1864, the army falling back on Corinth, Miss. There he obtained a furlough and returned home.

James P. Hipp

He enlisted in the Nineteenth Arkansas (Regiment) Volunteers in January 1862, and was captured at Arkansas Post, January 11, 1863, being carried to Camp Douglas, Ill., he was exchanged at City Point, Va., and died at Petersburg in 1863. Service records indicate his death May 4, 1863.

John T. Hipp

John T. (Hipp) enlisted in the Nineteenth Arkansas (Regiment) Volunteers, at the age of nineteen, was wounded and captured at Arkansas Post, January 11, 1863, and carried to St. Louis, Mo. He was exchanged at City Point, Va., in June, 1863, and was in the Army of the Tennessee the rest of the war. He took part in the battles of Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, Resaca, New Hope, Kenesaw Mountain, Atlanta, Jonesboro, Franklin and Nashville, having been in Pat Cleburne's division of Hardee's corps. He returned to Arkansas after the war.

W.A. Hipp

He enlisted in the Sixteenth Arkansas (Regiment) Volunteers, under Gen. Price, and was in the battles at Corinth and Port Hudson, where he was captured; he served until the surrender on this side (west) of the Mississippi River. Service records indicate his parole July 12-13, 1863 at Port Hudson, Louisiana.

Frank Lee

In 1862 he enlisted as lieutenant in the Confederate army, Company D, Thirtieth Alabama Regiment. He was for some time during the war engaged in boating coal from the Kidd & Co. coal pits to the Selma Gun Foundry. He was in several skirmishes, but in no active engagements. After the close of the war he returned to his home in St. Clair County, Ala.

Judge W.N. McClure

Judge McClure enlisted in the Confederate army in 1861, as second sergeant in Company C, Nineteenth Arkansas Regiment, and served in this until 1864. He was engaged in the battle of Arkansas Post, and was taken prisoner by Gen. McClernand. After being retained for three months, he was exchanged and was consolidated with the Twenty-fourth Arkansas, in which regiment he continued until after the battles of Chickamauga and Missionary Ridge. He was then united with the Eighth Arkansas, and was in the battle of Resaca, New Hope Church, Pine Mountain, Kenesaw Mountain, Atlanta, Ga. He was twice slightly wounded, and after the war he returned home to Pike County. Service records show him at Dalton, Georgia in a hospital June 5, 1863.

John D. Meeks

In 1861 he enlisted in the Confederate army as a private in Company D, Twelfth Arkansas Regiment. He participated in the following engagements: Prairie Grove, Pine Bluff, Jenkin's Ferry (on Saline River) and was also in numerous skirmishes, but was never wounded. After the war he returned to Clark County, Arkansas.

Green L. Oldham

He enlisted in the Confederate army, serving as private.

Augustus H. Palmer

Mr. Palmer enlisted in the Confederate army, in 1862, as a private in Company K, Monroe's regiment, and participated in the following battles: Prairie Grove, Kansas City, and was in numerous skirmishes. He returned to his home in Columbia County, Arkansas after the war.

A.W. Parker

Our subject and his father, J.C. Parker below, served in the Federal army, in company F, Fourth Arkansas Cavalry.

J.C. Parker

He served in the Federal army, in company F, Fourth Arkansas Cavalry.

James Pickett

He enlisted during the latter part of the war, and served but a short time. He had two sons in the army, one of whom died in prison at Rock Island.

A.A. Stell

He served in the late war, entering Company G, Cravin's regiment, under Gen. Churchill, in 1864, and served until the close of the war. May 28, 1865, he returned home to Pike County.

William S. Stroope

On July 15, 1861, Mr. Stroope enlisted in Weatherspoon's company, and was in the battles of Oak Hill and Elkhorn. He was taken sick after the battle and was unable to go with his company across the Mississippi River. After recovering he joined Reed's company and served wholly in Arkansas, until the close of the war.

James S. Thomasson

In 1864 he ran away from home and enlisted in the Confederate service in Beall's batalion, McCoy's brigade, and served until the close of the war. At the surrender he was at Doctortown, Ga., and immediately after that event took place he returned home.

W.B. Thomasson

In the spring of 1862 he raised a company at home, was elected captain, and soon went to the front, where he was attached to the Forty-first Regiment Georgia Infantry and was in the battles of Corinth, Perryville, Missionary Ridge and in the battles of Georgia, siege of Vicksburg, Jones-boro, on the Georgia campaign, and at Benton-ville, where the last gun fired. He then returned to Georgia.

Samuel B. Wall

He enlisted in the Confederate army, serving as brigadier-sergeant thoughout the war. He was wounded severely several times. In the first battle of Bull Run he was shot through both thighs and both calves; at Wilmington his big toe was shot off; at Gettysburg he was shot through the lungs, and while crossing the Tennessee River with Hood's retreat, he was wounded quite severly by a shell. At the close of the war he returned to his home in Mississippi.

Thomas R. Watson

In 1862 he enlisted as a private in the Confederate army, Company C, Nineteenth Arkansas Regiment, under Capt. Watson, and was in the battles of Chickamauga, New Hope Church, and others. He was wounded at Chickamauga, and this kept him from the field for two months. After re-covering, he was in the Georgia campaign, was at the battle of Arkansas Post, at which he was captured, and taken to Camp Douglas, Chicago, where he was retained for three months. In 1863 he was exchanged. After cessation of hostilities, he returned to his home in Arkansas. Service records indicate his enlistment June 10, 1862 at Wilton, Arkansas in Pike County, his capture at Arkansas Post, January 11, 1863, sent to Military Prison at Camp Douglas, Illinois and thereafter to City Point, Virginia.

Caswell B. Willett

During the late war, Mr. Willett enlisted as a private in the Confederate army in July, 1862, and was in the Chatham Flying Artillery. He was discharged on the 6th of December of he same year, on account of physical disability. In 1864 he enlisted in Capt. Sharp's battalion, in which he served until the close of the war. He was in num-erous skirmishes, although in no general engage-ments.

John M. White

He served in the late (Civil) war, entering the Confederate army in 1862, under Gen. Lee, in Company F, Forty-seventh Alabama Regiment, and served in many hard fought battles, among the principle ones being: Cedar Run, Manassas, Chattanooga, Wilderness, Richmond and Appo-mattox and Gettysburg. At the time of the surrender he was at home on a furlough.

... my Father's sister was the oldest child born in 1885 and gifted with the family memory ... She said her grandmother (Mary Jane Stone) Brewer died before she was born which computes because she was not on the 1880 census. She said her great-grandmother Stone (Mary Jane's mother) lived to be in her 90's ... she spoke of an Uncle Oliver Stone, I thought her memory off there, but found an Oliver Stone age 45 on the Hopkins Co. (Texas) 1870 census, born in S.C. So there were Olivers on both sides (Brewer-Stone) ... I wonder if James Calvert (Brewer) ever remarried. There was no wife listed on the 1880 Hopkins Co., Tex. census, only his mother Zerelda E. age 68 and the children, all birthplaces, check ...

Historical Briefs

In the late fall in 1944 these people came to Mt.
Moriah to start an afternoon Sunday School: Mr.
Thrash, Mrs. Hile, Rose Green and Mrs. Lock-ey.
This Sunday School was carried on across the Highway from the present church under trees. Cold weather came and Milburn Tallant gave us a vacant house to use as a place to worship. Ermon Webb from First Baptist Church came and preached, and later the Association Missionary, Virgil Defrest, came and helped until he became pastor of First Baptist Church. Bro. J.H. Usser came to Little River
Association as Missionary in late winter of 1944-45.
A group gathered to see about organizing a church.
It was asked if the community wanted a Baptist church, and if not, another church would be contacted. Everyone voted Baptist. The four were to be charter mem-bers. Four new members were Theodore and Rosie Hinds and Watson and Marie Harris. George Hinds accepted Christ as Savior. All were baptized in First Church at Nashville. Most of the summer of 1945 was spent in this house. Bro.
Usser conducted a revival. There was a brush arbor put in front of the present church. Calvin and Mrs.
Armstrong brought the piano and she played every night. Clarence Hile led the singing. Twenty-two people came into the church and were baptized in the fall of 1945. There was a building put on the sides of the brush arbor. The building didn't have a was the first pastor at $6.00 per week. There have been many pastors since, this list (below) is not in order and some may have been left out.

The church got to an all-time low until Gaines Armstrong, pastor of First Baptist, came and started a new church. A building was built and was used until 1987 at which time an addition was added. To some this still isn't much, but it is some better than the shade of a tree. Another dear lady who never ceased to pray for Mt. Moriah was Nan Ponder and a faithful member.

There are many fields to plow ahead, so thank God for the past, but don't look back. We must look ahead.

Dear Mrs. Symons:

The Archives Division of the Texas State Library is in receipt of your letter of June 15 requesting information concerning Hiram T. Stell or Still.

Enclosed is a copy of a Confederate muster roll abstract for H.T. Still who enlisted in Capt. J.H. Dillahunty's Co. A, Texas State Troops on February 1, 1864 in Palo Pinto County. In the remarks section it states that this man died on April 10, 1864. This was the only record that we were able to locate in our holdings. It is possible that other military records may be found in the National Archives in Washington, D.C. To obtain the necessary form (Form NATF 80) for requesting copies of records from them you should write: Reference Services Branch (MMIR), National Archives and Records Service, 8th and Pennsylvania Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20408.

If I can be of further assistance to you please feel free to call on me.

Sincerely,

Donaly E. Brice

Charity Stell Dossey
By Don and Dorothy Linn

A slender white marker, small and off to the side, marks the place in Dale Cemetery, Oklahoma, where a ... mother rests ... Charity Brock Stell. (She) married William G. Dossey of (Alabama) and lived in Howard County, Arkansas (much) of her life. She already had five children ... (and) bore her new husband five more and was step-mother to his seven children by (his previous wife) Nancy Kelley (deceased) ... William and Nancy's children were: Rebecca J., William M., Margaret, Thomas F., Sophia A., James A. and Etta C. Dossey. Charity's children when she married (William G. Dossey) were: Amanda E., James A., Joseph B., Moses B. and Elizabeth Stell.

William and Charity's children were: John H., Albert Dennis, Charles P., David Alexander and Harve Whitmore Dossey.

They lived in Blue Bayou Township, Sevier (now Howard) County, where (they) were founding members of the Blue Bayou Church of Christ which met for their first organizational meeting on February 22, 1880. The officers elected ... were W.G. Dossey, Elder; T.G. Roby, Assistant Elder; and the deacons: C.W. Chesshire (sic), James T. Hale; and for clerk: W.W. Reese. Brother Dossey delivered the discourse on March 21, 1880 during the first worship service.
William G. Dossey (died) on April 8, 1885 and was buried on a portion of the family farm that was set aside and dedicated as the Dossey Cemetery, Center Point, Arkansas. His youngest son was only 13 years old. Charity kept the family together and managed her home until the children were grown.

When Charity came to Oklahoma, she lived at the home of her ... son, Harve and his wife, Mamie Ozella Latimer Dossey. Harve and Mamie had five children: Willie Bryan, Annie Rooney, Ruby May, Erma Faye and Harley Hugh. They (were) all born in Arkansas and came to the ... Shawnee, Oklahoma area when young children.

Several of Charity's other children came to Oklahoma when the new territory was opened for settlement and she enjoyed visiting them and would stay with each for a few weeks before going to the next family.

When Charity died on April 23, 1919 she was not taken to Arkansas to lie beside her husband ... but (buried) in (this) new area they, her family members, were helping to settle. She had grandchildren and great grandchildren to carry on ... after her ...

PAST CORRESPONDENCE

In Search of Descendents of Olive Hart Kennedy

My husband and I have undertaken a family history on the John Hart family. We are hoping to speak with someone related to Olive Kennedy. Here is the information we have:

Olive Hart was born in Ohio in 1871 to John Hart and Catherine Walker. She was the youngest of 5 children. Her siblings were: James M., William, Francois (Frank), & Mary Ann (Annie). The family moved from Ohio to Arkansas some time in the 1880's. She (Olive) married Daniel Wesley Kennedy March 15, 1886 in Hot Spring County. According to the federal censuses the following is a list of her children and when they were born: Laura 1887, Ester son 1891, Clara 1894, Clay 1896, a son born in October 1899 unable to make out name, Helen 1903, Leonard 1907, Guy 1910, Milton 1915. We believe she also lost 4 children.

The family was in Ouachita County in 1900 and in Pike County in 1920. We have not located them in 1910. If you believe you are related to Olive Kennedy please drop us a line. We have tracked down descendants of James M. Hart. William Hart died in 1885 and we have been unable to locate any family of Annie who we believe married a Stevens.

Sincerely,
Linda,

I have decided to start more research on the Garners in the Amity area. My mother in law was a daughter of Henry Lee Garner. Her mother was Medi Smith. Her mother was a Finley. I have several names from the Garners, but nothing on Medi Smith or her parents. I would like to get in contact with anyone doing research on any of these families. I was born in Amity, moved Rosboro area when I was 2, moved to Texas when I was 13, so I'm familiar with the area.

Dear Dorothy,

I'm flattered you used so much of my material in the Gems. Someone from Bryan (Texas) called and said some of it was on the internet. I'm too old to get involved in that...

I would like to know about my great grandmother Amanda Lee b. in Ga. (1827) orphan of James Lee. (She) married Jesse Isaac Chapel in 1842 in Ga. (and) d. in Pike Co. between 1905-1910. Possibly buried at Oak Hill Cemetery. Also anything about William B. Gould b. 1816 in N.Y. m. Sarah Sophrona Campbell in 1839 in Hempstead Co.

I noticed in the Gems that Otis Dyer died. I talked with him once. We were both interested in William Bond Gould. He said he was going to Little Rock to search.

My sister-in-law who helped me write the Chapel book has been very ill... she taught library science at Quachita College. She and I both are 80 years old. Our days of "tree shaking" are about over. I laugh when I think about her almost getting lost trying to find Shawmut - got on log roads that dead ended - never did find it.

I'm very interested in the cemetery book. I'm sure it is a big project... I noted in the beautiful red picture book of Early Pike County that some of the Shawmut relatives are buried across the river in Clark County. Maybe some of my Chapels and Lees are there.

Sincerely,

Mildred Glass

Dear Librarian,

I am working on my Caves family tree. My grandma Mittie Risenhoover married her first husband George A. Thompson in 1904. About 1908 or so George Thompson died, no documentation. (She) married Elton J. Sanders on November 20, 1911. After a short time (she) left Mr. Sanders...

Mittie married a Mr. George Thomas Caves (marriage license applied for about Jan. 15, 1917) ... I doubt that this was the correct date. The family doesn't know when their parents got married thus my research has been difficult.

I am seeking information where my grandparents marriage is recorded. I have looked in Polk, Montgomery, Hot Spring, Sevier and Washington counties to name a few. It is important that I document the Caves family. I am hoping you might check your holdings for the names of these ancestors... your help is greatly appreciated.

Baytown, TX 77520

Dear Dorothy,

I got your address from Mary Feige. I am trying to (obtain) an obituary of my Grandmother Norma Ester Busby who died in 1926. It is in the Pike County Courier dated July 16, 1926 page 1 column 3. It (names) her as Mrs. Dr. Doughty.

Her father Robert W. Busby was a Blacksmith and lived in Murfreesboro. He is buried in Murfreesboro in a cemetery in town with his second wife. If you could find Robert Busby's obituary it might be helpful. Where could I find a copy of his death certificate? Pike Co. or Little Rock? I have hit a stumbling block with this family ...

My email address is Nanaco8681@aol.com ... Thank you for your help.

Note: Census records are not county records. They are federal records. They are usually available on microfilm in main public libraries having a genealogical section, genea-logical libraries, state archives and state historical societies, and the entire census collection is available at the National Archives in Washington, D.C. and Federal Archives branches throughout the country. A photocopy can be made from the microfilm image of the page having family census infor-mation. A notory public, at their discretion, may be able to certify the census page photocopy.

BOOTHE, McDaniel Posted by Wanda Boothe (wwbooth@aol.com), Mon, 17 Jan 2000. I am looking for the parents of Alabama J. McDaniel b. 1871 who married James Daniel Boothe in Pike Co. in 1892. James D. was b. in 1864. By 1904 Alabama and James were in Anderson co. TX. I have been unable to locate the parents of either James Daniel Boothe or Alabama McDaniel. Also have been unable to find them in Pike Co. in 1900. On the 1900 census for Pike co. there was a James McDaniel that we feel is closely con-nected to our Alabama McDaniel Boothe. James McDaniel had twin sons b. 1896 named Claud and Clyde McDaniel. Alabama and James Boothe also named twin sons, b. in TX 1904, Claud and Clyde Boothe. Thanks for any help you can give. Wanda Boothe.

WILLIAMSON Posted by Alicia G. Winn (billwinn@ktc.com), Tue, 07 Mar 2000. I'm looking for any information concerning my great-grandmother, Sarah Burns Williamson, b 1795, and who died August 1882 at Rock Creek, in Pike County, Arkansas, according to the Williamson family bible. At the time of her death, she was living with her son, Dr. Algernon Williamson, and wife Martha (Mattie), and their family. Any information about her would be appreciated as I have not been able to find much of anything about her, or where she would have been buried. Any ideas exactly where "Rock Creek" was, and where the cemetery would be?

DAVIS, YOUNG, BABBITT Posted by Philip Davis (phillevng@edge.net), Wed, 15 Mar 2000. William B. (b. 1837) & Sarah C. (Young) Davis (b. 1846) of Pike County, were my great-great grandparents. I am looking for information regarding HIS parents. The Pike County censuses say that his mother was born in Tennessee and his father in either North or South Carolina. I do not have their names or dates of birth and death, etc. Any clues?

Murfreesboro School North of Town Posted by: V.P. (thevp@cswnet.com) Date: August 08, 2000. In 1920, my grandfather died in Murfreesboro, Pike County, Ar., and the obit said at the time he was a teacher at the school north of town. Does anyone have an idea about the name of the school, or how I can find school records? Regards.

From: "Violet Potts" (thevp@cswnet.com) To: "David Kelley" (a0009792@airmail.net) Subject: Re: Grandfather's Obituary, John Alfred Lucy, Jr. Date: Sat, 21 Jul 2001 19:29:28 -0500

According to a Murfreesboro newspaper, dated the following is the death notice: "J.A. Lucy, aged 64, died at his home in this city Saturday night after an illness of only a few days of pneumonia. The attack was severe from the onset and he rapidly grew worse until his death some few days later. Mr. Lucy was a school teacher by profession, and was teaching in one of the near districts north of town when taken ill. He came to Murfreesboro about four years ago from Ashdown, bought property in the city and has resided here since. His remains were interred in the Murfreesboro cemetery Monday afternoon, funeral services being conducted by Rev. J.R. Rushing, pastor of the Methodist church. He is survived by several children who live in Texas and Oklahoma."

Previous history of John Alfred Lucy, Jr.: John A. Lucy, was postmaster at Mead, OK, (P.O. established) April 10, of 1894. Two years later in 1896, my mother Carrie Eliza Lucy was born there in Mead.

Mead or Double Springs: In 1866, a band of Creek Indians camped 1/2 mile south of present day Mead. Two families camped there and west of the camp were two large Springs. The area was selected for camp meeting grounds. Presbyterians who came to this place were: Allen Wright, Stephen Peters, and Dixon Durant, preached in both languages. Years later A.J. Lucy came and put in a store and named the place Double Springs, then built a church for both whites and Indians who began to move here. The church was also used for school.

Finally, I am getting this together. My records show that John A. (Lucy) b. May 1858, in Knox County, Tn, married in 1885, in Tn., to LeeAnn Potts. He died Jan. 10, 1920, after a three-day illness. He was a school teacher at a school north of Murfreesboro, after moving from Ashdown, AR. At the time of death, he and LeeAnn were divorced, according to the death record. He was survived by six children: Mittie Bryant, Carrie Eliza Nelms, Dewey, Lucy, Fannie Felicia Caplinger, and Jannie Lucy. He was preceded in death by a son, Horace Lucy, who died in 1918, during the flu epidemic (and survived by) his wife and child, Irene Kahlor Lucy and daughter ... of Shinewell, OK.

Samuel K. Busick

2-5-01

Dear Ms. Partain,

My ancestor, Samuel K. Busick lived in Pike Co., AR, in 1840-1850 census, Thompson Township. I have hit a brick wall in my research on who were his parents. I wonder if your organization has any information that might help me. Has anyone else inquired about this family? I'd like their name(s) so I can write if there has been an inquiry.

There is an Owen Joseph Busick in Hot Spring Co. I think they may have been brothers. My ancestor left Pike Co. and is (in) Polk Co. in 1860, then goes on to Red River Co., TX. He died there in 1875.

I wish I could find a connection to other families in Pike Co. on the 1850 census. I have no leads though.

Does your organization have a print-out of available county records in Pike Co.? Also, is there a Goodspeed History that tells about Pike Co., early days? I’d like any information you might have on the 1840-1850 era. Are there deeds or land records available? I wonder if Samuel Busick owned land there?

Thanks, in advance, for any help or leads you might send me.

Sincerely,
Tena Roark

Cindy Scott forwarded me your message about the marriage of Jonathan Marion Haynes to Elizabeth A. (Abt 1857) found in the Pike County Arkansas Reconstructed Marriages 1834-1895. The correction you have provided is very much appreciated and I have deleted this entry from the marriages. I will send an updated file to the Pike County web-page.
I would like your permission to print the portion of your message below in "The Gems" quarterly. It is quite informative and may be of interest to other readers, especially those interested in this family. Thank you.

Hi Cindy,

... I did want to mention to you that I believe David Kelley's listing for the reconstructed Pike County marriage of Jonathan Marian Haynes may be incorrect -- I have thought this for about a year, when I first saw these on the Pike County page. There were three Haynes boys who had the initials J.M. Haynes, and two of them are listed as joining the 4th AR Infantry from Pike County. These two were brothers, and were sons of my ggg-gf Edward Haynes. Their names were Jona-than M. Haynes and James M. Haynes. Edward's son Jonathan M. Haynes married Mary Craig in Hempstead Co. on Jan. 4, 1860 (I have their original marriage certificate), and Edward's son James M. Haynes married Lisebeth Abelgail Russell on June 24, 1856 in Columbia Co., AR. Henry Haynes also had a son named Jonathan Marion Haynes; but he married Nancy A. Giles on Aug. 9, 1853 in Carroll Co., GA. His father Henry did not come to Arkansas until the mid-1850's. I have records of all these marriages, and I believe that the Jonathan Haynes who is listed as marrying Elizabeth A. about 1857 in the Pike County records was actually James M. Haynes who married Lisebeth (Elizabeth) Abelgail Russell in Columbia Co. in 1856. The Jonathan who married Nancy died in the Civil War in about 1862, was a member of the 15th AR Infantry, and has probate records in Columbia Co. It is very easy to mix up the two Jonathans. It took me years to figure out who was Edward's son, and who was Henry's ...

Gleanings from The Kinmundy Express

Delbert Eagan, son of John and Mary Southwood Eagan was born in Kinmundy on Jan. 10, 1868, and died June 12, (1921). The family consisted of 7 children, 4 sons and 3 daughters, the latter reached womanhood and passed away some years ago. The brothers are: Sidney of Nathan, Ark.; Wm. of Kinmundy; and Charles of St. Louis. The grandfather, "Uncle Isaac" Eagan, was an Elder and charter member of C.P. Church, and deeded the land on which the church stands for that purpose. The father, John Eagan, was also an Elder in the church. "Dell", as the deceased was familiarly called, married Miss Alice Wilson at the M.E. Parsonage ... Feb. 1890. One son, Harry, was born to this union. Dell leaves a wife, son, 4 grandchildren, and 3 brothers. Services were held at the M.E. Church with burial in Evergreen Cemetery.

PCAHS UPDATE

New Archives

July 22 - Linda Wilson and Harrison Gilmer have started painting the new archives. The mudding and wall board work was donated to the archives by Minor Chaney. I went in to check it out the other day and there was someone wiring up the air so that the workers could work. It has really gotten hot here. Maybe we will get in there by fall.

August 5 - Walls are painted except the front room, we are waiting on the ceiling, floors, and restroom, then we will be able to make plans to move.

August 17 - Delight Hardware will be doing the finish work on the archives, the floor, ceiling, wall outlets, and so forth. Harrison Gilmer, Linda Wilson, and Retha Adams went up on a Wednesday and painted the walls in the large front room of the archives. The archives has been donated a computer by Grace Ann Riley of Delight.

August 28 - Delight Hardware, doing the finishing work on the archives, has already checked out what must be done to complete this project. They will be installing the floor, ceilings, electrical outlets, handicapped restroom facilities, doors and a couple of walls. Things are going slowly but Pike County will have an archives they can be proud of.

October 4 - At the PCAHS meeting tonight, I asked for an update on the archives. The ceiling is being put up, more sheetrock is being done, and soon maybe we will get back in there to scrape the floors and get some more painting done. We would really like to give an opening date, but are kind of uneasy doing that, as we don't know what might happen to slow down or speed up the process.

New Meeting Time

We made a change in the time of our meetings tonight. The new meeting time is 6:30 to 7:00 p.m. for comparing history, genealogy and visiting, and the business meeting starting at 7:00 pm. The old time was 6:30 to 7:30 for visiting with the business meeting starting at 7:30.

ABOUT PCAHS

The Pike County Archives and History Society was founded in 1986 and is a non-profit organization. The organization is dedicated to collecting and preserving materials which bring together the unique history of Pike County, Arkansas and its people. One of the objectives of PCAHS is to promote interest in the history of Pike County and the State of Arkansas. The collection of PCAHS includes family histories, census records, microfilm, publications and other materials for genealogical research. The archives house many old record books including early tax records, maps, etc. There is no charge for the use of these materials or of the research facilities in Murfreesboro but donations of money and/or research material are always welcome.
